Hello, it's me, Ikumi, again.

Hi! It's been a while. It's me, Mama of the Mews, Ikumi.♥ And this is the fourth volume of "Tokyo Mew Mew."
It feels like the third volume was just released, but now the fourth one's already coming out! Time flies so fast, I can't keep up anymore. Sigh.
I was wondering if you've seen my pride and joy yet? Yup, "Tokyo Mew Mew" has become an anime! Woo hoo!
I haven't had the chance to see it myself, but I've seen the drawings for the characters. The drawings are cute, and they've done a great job. I want to see Ichigo and company become the toughest girls on the planet! ♥♥
As for the voice actors, all the girls' voices are adorable. Masaya's role is acted by Ms. Megumi Ogata!! I believe it when I hear her say Masaya's romantic lines !! (I'm super excited!!)
And I can't believe the cast is so full of actors I admire! Originally, these lines were created while I talked and joked around with business buds. Now, famous voice actors are breathing life into these same lines. I can't help but feel a bit nervous about that sometimes.
As you watch the anime series, just remember I'll be writhing around anxiously in front of the TV as I listen to the characters (especially the male characters) say their lines (laugh).
All right, I hope you enjoy the rest of "Tokyo Mew Mew 4"!♥♥

Rika-chan by Takara

This is great news! (And yes, I know this has nothing to do with Rika-chan). I was already super psyched to hear that this series was going to be animated, but then I received even more big news. I heard that dolls based on my characters might be produced by Takara Inc., the company that made the Rika-chan dolls! At first I thought it was just a possibility, but guess what? It really happened! Thank you, Takara Inc.! I think they might be showing up in toy stores by now. I've received a doll for each of the characters. The first collection is called "Elegant Collection." The dolls are absolutely adorable! And it's not just because they're dolls based on my work. They're really worth it! I was thrilled because Takara Inc. listened to most of my little requests. The faces were based on my designs! (At least I think so!!!) Also, check out the hair!! Especially Mint's! Two perfect buns on either side of her head, just like it's supposed to be!

I was able to direct a lot of details on this project. I think they let me speak my opinions on everything but the voices. There will be more toys produced based on this series, so keep looking for them! I'm way beyond excited! The picture to the right is based on a Rika-chan doll that I received from Takara Inc. as a gift. They made it especially for me, after seeing one of my drawings. I was so touched! It's too bad I can't show you the real thing. I hope they end up mass-producing this doll, too.

LET'S FIGHT FOR THE FUTURE OF THE PLANET!

MOVE!

WE'LL BE FRIENDS. I PROMISE

About the Fourth Volume

by Reiko Yoshida

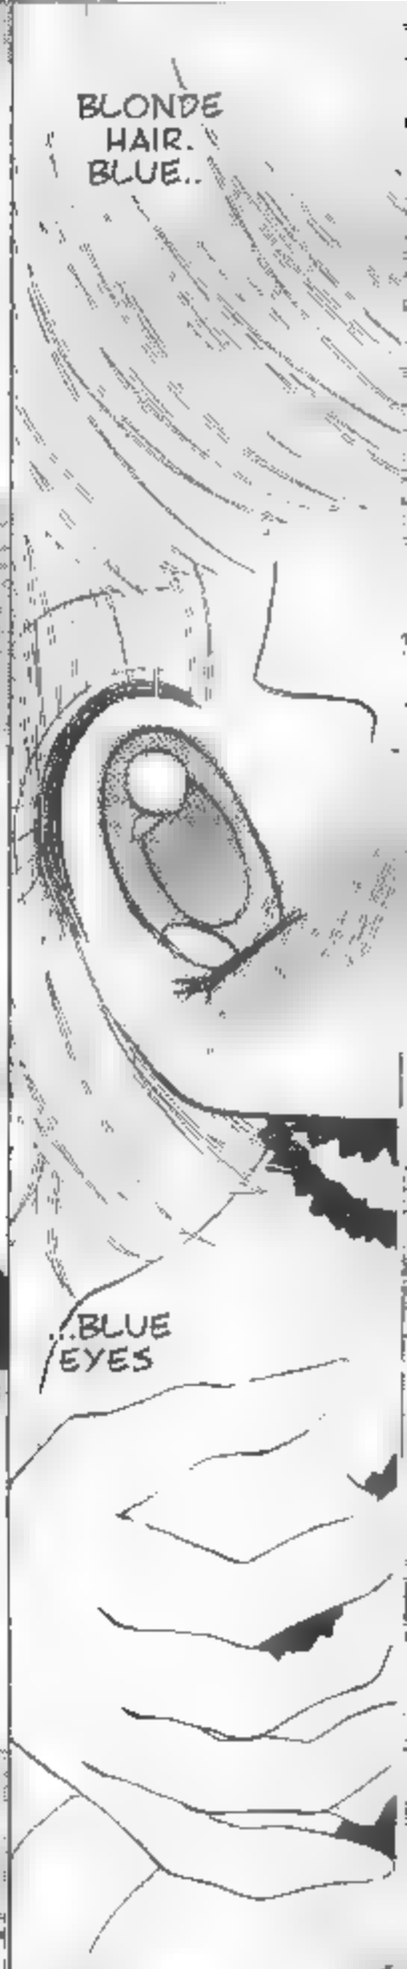
The "Mew Mews" got their special powers when they were fused with genes from endangered species. Many animals have special, interesting abilities, too.

For example, certain whale species can stun their food by emitting powerful sonar waves. Snakes can taste the air with their tongue. Armadillos are protected by their armor-like skin when they curl up into a ball. Skunks and aardvarks can emit a foul odor to escape from their enemies. I'm amazed at all these adaptations that different animals have developed.

I used to have a pet hamster. I was always surprised by its ability to store a lot of food in his cheeks. However, when he stored cookies, it would turn into mush.

If you were fused with an animal, which animal would help you out the most? If you're always running late, the swift cheetah would probably make a good choice. If you get cold easily, a fluffy sheep is a great option. But if you want to be popular, an endearing animal, like the panda, would suit you well.

Animals can be amazingly interesting!



STOP

HEEHEE HEH HEH.

A GIRL CAN'T HANDLE THAT MANY MONSTERS

SO LET ME HELP YOU

Tokyo Black Cat Girl

This was a project I finished before I started on "Tokyo Mew Mew." I remember having fun as I worked on this. I had just moved to Tokyo around that time. Life was pretty rough for me. For example, I ate mainly cabbages and beans for an entire week straight because they were on sale. I think I spent more time looking for affordable places to shop than working on manga like I should have (laugh).
People often ask, "Why did you choose Tokyo?" I don't really have a reason. I thought "Tokyo" sounded good in the title. That's all. I promise.
By the way, this drawing matches the drawing for the intro page of the May issue.

THEY'RE SAYING, "LET'S GET HER!!"

Afterward -

The other day, I went by a store I haven't shopped in for a while. An older dude started the shop after being laid off by his company. When the store first opened, he was always frowning and mega-cranky. But this time, he gave me a shy, hesitant smile! That made me feel really good, since I'm sure he's going through a lot right now. That made me realize I have to smile, too!
No matter what happens!

Finally...
To everyone who has read this series...
To everyone involved with this project...
To everyone who will help me in the future...
Thank you for your support!
